Course 1 Description

A Secret Pay Raise: How Embezzlers Think and Act (Dentist ONLY)

While many dental teams are loyal and honest, it only takes one desperate individual to financially ruin a dental practice. While internal controls are useful and important, they have limitations and may not be as effective as the doctor thinks. Many doctors fail to discover fraud and embezzlement until significant damage has occurred. Dr. Little shares some of his embezzlement cases as teaching tools that take you into the mindset of an embezzler.

Course Objectives:

- Recognize the profile of a typical embezzler.
- Understand what leads to embezzlement in dental offices.
- Analyze the strengths and limits of internal controls strategies.
- Identify the additional actions doctor's need to take beyond internal controls.
- Gain access to a behavioral assessment to identify red flag behaviors.

*Because specific fraud methodologies are openly discussed and demonstrated, this presentation is appropriate for DENTISTS ONLY.

Course 2 Description

"Journey to the Apex"

From access to apical preparation, endodontic instrumentation is one of the most difficult tasks that a dentist has to accomplish. Luckily, modern technology has made it possible for this process to be completed predictably and smoothly from start to finish. This course will review endodontic access, canal location, straight-line access, proper orifice management, and canal instrumentation.

Course Objectives:

- Review access preparation and straight-line techniques
- Understand the concepts of straight-line access, taper lock, and how tip and taper are used to increase efficiency in canal instrumentation.
- Identify the optimal characteristics and examples of files used for coronal shaping vs those used for apical instrumentation.

Hygienist Courses 1/2

Ultrasonic Scaling / Innovations in the Hygiene World- Practice Smart and Safe

Ultrasonic Scaling has become the preferred path with most hygienists and our patients. It provides both ergonomic and clinical advantages. We will discuss screening criteria, overcoming sensitivity, insert selection and positioning, as they relate to current hygiene procedures.

Course Objectives:

- Have a complete understanding of ultrasonic scaling and techniques.
- Identify and overcome hypersensitivity
- Understand the need and criteria for insert selection and replacement
- Reprocess and maintain Inserts, according to CDC guidelines
- Comprehend respiratory risks and aerosol management protocols
- Identify applications for ultrasonic scaling specific to implants, Periodontal procedures and restorations.
- Improve ergonomics in your workflow
